"We are not savages ignoring the rules of civilized warfare. We are a poor, ragged army as ragged and poor as was the army of your forefathers in their noble war for independence, but like the heroes of Saratoga and Yorktown, we respect our cause too deeply to disgrace it with barbarism and cowardice."
— Letter from Cuban Gen. Calixto Garcia to American Gen. William Shafter
The Cuba Libre Calixto bot update pack brings the successful Jacquard bot system to Cuba Libre. Like its predecessors in Garibaldi and Fall of Saigon, Calixto is quick to use and easy to implement but presents a challenge to any Cuba Libre player.

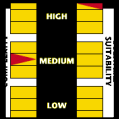

When selecting Operations and Special Activities, cards are drawn from the Calixto deck—there are six cards for each Cuba Libre faction. Each card examines the current state of the game and selects the appropriate action for the active faction. A single, faction-specific table then determines where that action will occur. The same table is used to select spaces for Operations, Special Activities, and Events, minimizing the need to flip between multiple player aids.

playing against Calixto is the playing against a human opponent. The experience for opponents is strategic and it goes over the standard while keeping an eye on the ally and makes moves and non limited to human players. The crossing of limited operation to create an opponent's event. Calixto can take the place of any faction in a Cuba Libre session and can be used in any combination of player and non-player setups.
