Colditz Castle - the fortress deep in Germany which held captive the very best escapers of World War II. Now you can enter its grey stone walls and relive the deeds of famous men and heroes. Measure yourself in the most daring game of all - the pursuit of liberty and life itself.

The game consists of up to 5 escape officers and 1 player acting as the German Guards. The objective of the game is to make/prevent the highest number of escapes from Colditz Castle.

Escape From Colditz is a 1-vs-many semi-cooperative game where one player is the Security Officer of the German forces, and the others are Escape Officers for various nationalities or prisoners of war (POWs). Escape Officers try to acquire the equipment they need for a successful escape (rope, wire cutters, etc.), while the Security Officer tries to hinder them by putting them in solitary confinement and confiscating their equipment.

Play lasts for a pre-determined length of time or number of rounds. If an Escape Officer can free a pre-determined number of POWs (usually 2) before then, they win. Otherwise the Security Officer wins.

The game was co-designed by Major P.R. Reid, a British soldier who was one of the few to actually successfully escape from Colditz during the Second World War.
