

Yankee ASL Nor'Easter Pack II

Here is a new product from the new England ASLERS ! This is from the same producers who brought you the YASL pack a few years ago. This time they had LFT produce the pack. It features 3 boards and 15 scenarios.

Rating: Not Rated Yet

Price

Price £30.95

Ask a question about this product

Manufacturer LE FRANC TIREUR \(3rd Party ASL\)

Description

The scenarios

	YASL14	Szczuki		vs.		5.5 turns
Szczuki, Poland, 4 September 1939 : The German 3rd Army, which was part of Army Group North, drove hard out of East Prussia. They were heading south towards Warsaw as part of the overall German plan to trap the Polish armies west of the Vistula River. In the path of the German advance was Army Modlin, of whom the Mazowiecka Cavalry Brigade was a part. The Polish were fighting the German advance tooth and nail.
	YASL15	Chances are Slim		vs.		6 turns
40 KILOMETERS FROM THE HUNGARIAN BORDER, Poland, 27 September 1939 : The Cavalry Operational Group (Grupa Operacyjna Kawalerii) was close to the Hungarian border when Soviet forces hit them from the front and rear. Soviet tanks led the way as the Poles fought desperately to stave off the attack.
	YASL16	Legion of Doom		vs.		5.5 turns
Stary Sanzhary, Ukraine, 3 October 1941 : The Independent State of Croatia contributed to Hitler's East Front crusade by loaning the 369th Rein-forced (Croatian) Infantry Regiment to the Wehrmacht. Known as the 'Croatian Legion', the regiment was operating in support of Army Group South in the Ukraine. On October 3rd one of the regiment's officers, Hauptmann Vasilije Maljin, noticed that armed men were hiding in the woods around the village of Stary Sanzhary. The 11. Radfahren-Kompanie (bicycle company) and an at-tached Reiterzug (cavalry platoon) were ordered to reconnoiter and clear out any enemy troops. The bicycle company approached the village from the west while the cavalry came from the northeast.

WW2 : Yankee ASL Nor'Easter Pack II

	YASL17	Hill 200 - gateway to Rzhev		vs.		5.5turns
---	--------	-----------------------------	---	-----	---	----------

Hill 200, Polunino, Russia, 4 August 1942 : During the summer of 1942 the Soviet military leadership considered the central (Smolensk-Moscow) axis to be the main strategic area of importance and massed their forces accordingly. From the 1st to the 3rd of August, the Russians attempted to broaden the penetration to the northwest and northeast of Rzhev. On August 4th, following an air raid and artillery fire the Soviets attacked. At 1355 hours, under cover of a moving barrage, approximately 25-30 Russian tanks and a large mass of Russian infantry rushed the positions of the German 6th Division, with the main weight of the attack falling on the 58th Infantry Regiment's 1st and 9th Companies.

	YASL18	Recon on the logging trail		vs.		5 turns
---	--------	----------------------------	---	-----	---	---------

WEST OF HILL 700, Bougainville, 11 March 1943 : With the main Japanese assault by Colonel Magata's 1st and 3rd Battalions about to hit the 37th Division's 2nd Battalion, 129th Infantry Regiment, both sides needed to know the intentions or positions of the other before the big battle broke. Recon in force was ordered and clashes along the Logging Trail down by the lowlands near the hills erupted.

	YASL19	Indirect Panther		vs.		8 turns
---	--------	------------------	---	-----	---	---------

Ukraine, 16 February 1944 : Kampfgruppe Haack was a scratch organization of units hastily assembled to guard the left flank of VIII Armeekorps. Umlauber Regiment Baake provided the infantry strength of the Kampfgruppe. Comprised of escapees from units encircled in the Cherkassy Pocket and troops recalled from leave, hastily organized into platoons and companies, the regiment lacked heavy weapons. In addition to guarding the flank of VIII Armeekorps, the overextended Kampfgruppe was ordered to establish contact with the right flank of III Panzerkorps, which was attempting to relieve the troops trapped in the Cherkassy Pocket. Directly in Kampfgruppe Haack's path was the Russian 325th Rifle Division, entrenched on hill 204.8.

	YASL20	Broe Bay Brouhaha		vs.		6 turns
---	--------	-------------------	---	-----	---	---------

Inasi village, Noemfoor, 23 July 1944 : Douglas MacArthur coveted Noemfoor Island for the three airfields it possessed. D-Day was set for July 2, 1944 and the U.S. Army's 158 RCT clambered ashore against little opposition. On July 3rd and 4th the 503rd Parachute Infantry Regiment's 1st and 3rd Battalions were to be airdropped into the beachhead centered on Kamin airfield. Due to the size of the drop zone as well as the condition of the airfield, the two battalions suffered a 9% jump casualty rate. This was bad enough, but soon the 503rd would be called upon to clear the Japanese off the southern end of Noemfoor.

	YASL21	A Matter of Honor		vs.		6 turns
---	--------	-------------------	---	-----	---	---------

Orote peninsula, Guam, 26 July 1944 : Six weeks after Operation FORAGER crashed ashore on Saipan, American commanders turned their attention to the liberation of Guam. Two points on the island's eastern shore were selected for the initial beach landings. The assault force comprised the 3rd Marine Division (3rd, 9th, and 21st Marines) reinforced by the 1st Provisional Marine Brigade (4th and 22nd Marines) and the Army's 77th Division. On 21 July, the first waves of LVTs stormed the beaches close behind a thunderous naval barrage and bombing by swarms of U.S. Navy and Marine aircraft. The Japanese, for their part, were ready for the onslaught, and caused considerable delay to American efforts at consolidating the twin beachheads into one. By D+5 the Orote Peninsula was the last Japanese stronghold on the eastern side of the island. The 4th and 22nd Marines were ordered to attack the peninsula and seize Orote airfield, as well as the old Marine Barracks, abandoned since the Japanese invasion in December 1941.

	YASL22	Where the Reindeer Dare Not Go		vs.		5.5 turns
---	--------	--------------------------------	---	-----	---	-----------

East of Luostari, Murmansk oblast, Russia, 11 October 1944 : During the initial phase of the Pets